Welcome LANGENMÜLLER

Dear Partners,

In 1893 - 130 years ago - the LangenMüller publishing house came to life.
Today we celebrate this with some of the historical highlights of our program.

Remember the country's first biting satirical magazine of the early 20th century:
"The Simplicissimus" was published here. Please find our historical overview of this on page 9, along with other gems, like Johannes Urdizil, a contemporary of Kafka's, or Friedrich Torberg.

Our new fall program features a non-fiction title on the power of advertising and its influence on politics (Errichello, page 10).

Enjoy browsing and please let us know if you have any requests.
This fall, you will find us in Hall 3.0 Stand D36 in Frankfurt at the book fair.

We look forward to hearing from you.
Best wishes to all from the LangenMüller Licensing Team
Julia Courmont, Sissi Klauser and Elmar Klupsch

Venezuela's Hope and Tragedy

Conrado Rubio
Plaza Bolívar

September 2022; € 25,- [D]

250 pages
Hardcover with dust jacket, 13.5 x 21.5 cm
978-3-7844-3643-2

Konrad O. Bernheimer (aka Rubio) was born in Venezuela in 1950, where his family had fled after being expropriated by the Nazis. He returned to Germany at the age of four. However, the hacienda and the associated coffee plantation in Venezuela remained in the possession of his family for decades. Since 2015, Bernheimer has also become a successful author, most recently publishing the art crime novel "Deadly Paintings" (2020).

- ▶ Venezuela's tragedy and hope in a spellbinding novel
- ▶ Authentic and inspired

Don Juan Vicente Morales represents one of Venezuela's last old families. His wife and his only son lost their lives in tragic circumstances. When he is confronted with his young nephew's drug addiction, his life finally reaches a turning point: he declares war on drugs and corruption in Venezuela. He only realises at a very late stage that he has unwittingly become a politician. When Don Juan is urged to run for the office of provincial governor, he makes a decision with fatal consequences for himself and for his country ...

The World of Art Crimes

- ▶ A mysterious crime story for art lovers
- ▶ By the successful author and antiquarian

A new novel set in art dealer scene: John Blumenstein, art dealer, bon vivant and occasional secret agent, is back and devotes himself to his new passion with esprit and a good portion of criminal energy: art theft. En passant, a „small“ Rembrandt and a larger Venetian inheritance come into his possession. But then David, a mysterious secret agent who once saved his life, reappears and convinces John with mysteriously blackmailing threats to steal some paintings, including a large Rubens, from famous museums. John Blumenstein takes readers from Paris to Tel Aviv, to London and Oxford, and from Venice back to Munich. At the same time, a murder has to be solved and it is only very late that John realises how everything is connected ...

- ▶ Dealing with the sudden death of a beloved partner
- ▶ Encouragement for everybody in crisis

In April 2022, Munich journalist Kimberly Hagen loses her beloved husband to an unexpected death and, at 41, suddenly finds herself in a role she never wanted to be in: a young widow. In a moving and very personal journal she describes the terrible, bizarre and sometimes hilarious madness between grief, tomb shopping at the graveyards, a veritable tsunami of condolences and complete breakdown. From power woman to grieving widow. But Kimberly Hagen never gives up, she listens to her rebelling body, withdraws, finds strength in nature, heals herself, bravely faces the sometimes serious changes and lets us in on how she regains control. This book is about a strong woman who, after the worst crisis, takes back her own new life step by step and gets to know and love her new self. And who, after the first year of mourning, is so much stronger, more grown, more alert, more mature and more powerful than before. A true encouragement for all who have lost somebody near and a testimony of a strong woman.

- ▶ Explosive thriller on cutting edge topic
- ▶ A super hacker gets away with millions

A new CIA thriller by the bestselling author. Super-hacker Gladio with access to quantum computers decodes the most secret codes, cracks blockchains and robs millions. The Chinese are hunting him to use his brilliant skills for their cyberattacks on the Western economy. The CIA and NSA are on red alert. The Mafia is hiding the genius in Sicily, and private investigator Michael Cooper is given the almost impossible task by the highest authorities to find Gladio before anyone else in order to prevent a system collapse.

Douglas has written several thrillers, always drawing on his own military background and the international relations between East and West. The perfect get away from everyday life: exciting plots, international leads - you won't be able to put them down.

James Douglas is a popular author from Switzerland. As a lieutenant colonel in the Swiss army, lawyer and criminologist, he is familiar with security issues, organised crime and intelligence services. His insider information and knowledge of the intertwining of money, power and politics flow into his thrillers. Most recently he published the action thrillers „The Case Amos“ (2021) and „Fire Storm“ (2019) with LangenMüller

Johannes Urzidil (born 1896 in Prague, died 1970 in Rome) was a German-Bohemian writer with a Jewish mother. He worked in Prague as journalist, poet and writer until 1933, when he emigrated to the UK upon the rise of national socialism. In 1941 he moved to the United States, eventually becoming US citizen in 1946. His works include Das große Halleluja (1959), Prager Tryptychon (1960), Das Elefantentblatt (1962), Morgen fahr ich heim (1971).

► Prague and its authors: Kafka, Werfel, Brod in the 1920s

► Story collection by the rediscovered author

„Kafka was Prague and Prague was Kafka.“ Urzidil, himself the youngest poet in the legendary circle of Franz Kafka, Max Brod, and Franz Werfel, takes us to his Prague of the 1920s and vividly describes the dense creative atmosphere in which the greats of literature and art moved at that time. This collection of stories enables the reader to better understand Kafka's complex personality and his works, as it speaks from familiarity with his intellectual homeland. The Prague of the time, with its German, Czech, and Jewish history, permeates every line of this impressive collection with its spiritual vibrancy, creating a very personal memorial to one of the most important literary figures of the 20th century.

Here is a selection of titles celebrating 130 years of excellent and noteworthy literature. The Simplicissimus - the famous satirical paper, which caused the publisher Albert Langen to flee the country in 1896: here are two titles about the paper and its publisher. Bestselling novel „Nowhere in Africa“ by Stefanie Zweig was base for the Oscar crowned film by the same name. Rosendorfer was prolific writer and has been translated several times. Friedrich Torberg, like Urzidil, belongs to the rediscovered authors, who left us anecdotal novellas about his Jewish heritage. Rafael Seligmann impresses with his wonderful autobiographically inspired trilogy about his father's family, and his own upbringing as a Jewish child in Postwar Munich.

Prof. Dr. Oliver Errichiello, born in Hamburg in 1973, is an economic sociologist and expert in brand positioning, advertising and green brand management. Errichiello holds the world's only professorship for „brand sociology“ and teaches at the universities of Mittweida and Lucerne. He is also the author of numerous non-fiction and specialist books and a popular expert on German public television.

- ▶ Politics: selling emotions rather than facts
- ▶ How politics and advertising are linked

Never before has advertising been so political and politics so driven by advertising messages as it is today. Advertising cares about „the good“ and assumes „social responsibility“. A fruit candy, for example, promotes tolerance and a coke opposes hatred. It's not just selling, there is missionary work going on. Politics is oriented towards the woken world of advertising. Success is no longer a struggle for the best solution, but what quickly and massively creates the good feeling of saving the world. Oliver Errichiello takes an exciting, bizarre, sad and fascinating journey into the world of politics that has been hijacked by advertising and its makers.

Prof. Dr. Werner J. Patzelt, born in 1953, is a political scientist and professor emeritus at the TU Dresden, where he held the Chair of Political Systems and System Comparison from 1992 to 2019. As a member of the CDU, he cultivated exchanges with representatives of the entire political spectrum, from the Left Party to the AfD. Patzelt is also known for his political commentaries and analyses in the press, radio and television.

- ▶ Does Hungary have a right to be part of the EU?
- ▶ A full overview of the historical and cultural development

If you listen to the German leading media, the verdict on Hungary is quickly passed. But is the country ruled by Viktor Orbán really a semi-dictatorship full of corruption? Political scientist Werner J. Patzelt spent nine months on location searching for clues. What historical events shaped the country and its elites? How does the political system work, and what are the positions in the heated debate about Hungary's character today? Patzelt closes the gap between mere perceptions and real knowledge. Anyone who wants to form a well-founded judgement about Hungary cannot avoid this book.

Welcome

Amalthea

Dear Colleagues,

I'm happy to present to you a wide range of entertaining and informative new books covering subjects as diverse as religion, history and Austrian-Mediterranean cuisine. Allow me to highlight a few:

Judaism can exist without Christianity, but Christianity can't exist without Judaism:

Danielle Spera & Toni Faber reflect on the volatile history of their two religions, therefore providing a powerful plea for religious dialogue in modern society.

After several terror attacks in Europe, among them the one in Vienna in November 2020, a certain calm seems to have spread over the continent. Why this might be, terrorism expert Nicolas Stockhammer explains in his first book for a broad, non-scientific audience.

Last, but not least there's Gerhard Jelinek who writes about one of the most intriguing decades of the past century: the Roaring Twenties. 1924 marked the beginning of this fascinating new era in Germany and Austria – a tumultuous year of groundbreaking political events and social change.

Since I won't attend the Frankfurt Book Fair this year, I'd be all the more happy to meet you via Zoom & Co. Please contact me anytime for a digital meeting, information and updates about our titles – I'm looking forward to hearing from you!

Kind regards from Vienna
Madeleine Pichler

- ▶ An intriguing look at counterterrorism and terrorism prevention
- ▶ Sought-after expert

Paris, Berlin and Barcelona are just a few of the European cities that have been rocked by terror attacks in recent years. Vienna, too, was victim to a terrorist act on November 2, 2020: a mild evening, smiling faces, a holiday atmosphere – until the shooting began. Why do terror attacks keep happening? Who are the attackers and what motivates them? How can we prevent such things from happening in the future? One of Austria's leading terrorism experts answers these and other complex questions: taking the Vienna attack as an example, Nicolas Stockhammer explains the background of Islamist terror, how radicalization happens, who could become a terrorist, and how government surveillance and prevention works, highlighting recognizable patterns in the process – a profound overview of the current state of terrorism in Europe.

- ▶ A fascinating dialogue between representatives of two religions
- ▶ Why Judaism can exist without Christianity, but Christianity can't exist without Judaism

Danielle Spera and Toni Faber, both prominent and public advocates for their religion, have a lot in common. In their book, the former director of the Jewish Museum and the Dean of St. Stephen's Cathedral in Vienna openly confront the volatile history of their two religions, leaving nothing out. For centuries, relations between Jews and Christians were marred by hate and prejudice, with Christians persecuting Jews. But much more unites them than divides them: Jews are like the older brothers and sisters of Christians, when you read a Psalm you are reading a Jewish prayer, and Christianity without Judaism would be an "amputated religion". A fascinating dialogue about commonality, doctrine, and their meaning in modern society.

The memory of a pandemic fades...after several waves, the Spanish Flu finally loses its teeth...and the world manages to stave off hyperinflation. Six years after the end of the First World War, the people of Europe are learning to hope and dream again. An airplane circumnavigates the world in just 175 days, Berlin becomes the epicenter of the artistic avant-garde, and modern women with bobbed hair and short skirts enjoy unprecedented sexual freedom. At the same time, though, Hitler is released from prison, Stalin comes to power, Mussolini's fascists are flexing their muscles – and the next depression is lurking around the corner.

Fasten your seatbelts! Gerhard Jelinek takes us back to the turbulent, gilded 1920s – between rays of hope and flashes of lightning.

► Bad Ischl and the Salzkammergut – the European Cultural Capital 2024

► Stories of summer in the Alps

Since time out of mind, the land that stretches from Ischl to Hallstatt, from Gmunden to Aussee, has displayed its boundless riches for all the world to see. No other region combines a rural countryside with an urban lifestyle quite the way this one does. Dietmar Grieser has followed in the footsteps left by figures like Gustav Mahler, Adalbert Stifter and Thomas Bernhard, and come to a conclusion: people vacationed in other parts of Austria; here, they made history. Over time, a “countryside of the spirit” took shape in the hands of gifted painters, poets, musicians, architects, and scholars – a landscape that inspired Gustav Klimt’s “The Kiss”, Ralph Benatzky’s “The White Horse Inn”, and Felix Salten’s classic “Bambi”. We also meet personalities like Maria Jeritza, Theodor Billroth, Mathilde Wesendonck, Viktor Kaplan, Maria Cebotari, and Carl Zuckmayer – all in the region Jakob Wassermann described as “another planet”, a place which even today has lost none of its magic.
